Suburban Orienteering.....

Round four of the Lincs Urban League took place at Broughton, near Scunthorpe last Thursday. The courses planned by Pete Harris made full use of snickets and cut throughs which included some "urban nettles!"

Charlotte Ward was the top HALO runner on the long course, finishing second to Thomas Honniball. Brian Ward was fifth and Dave Jolly seventh.

Meanwhile on the medium course HALO took the first four places with Luke Snell finishing first. Well done everyone.

Interestingly the team results are going the same way as last year, in that the host team wins their home leg. So after four events it's two all, but LOG have an all important points lead of 16 points.

Current league standings are here <http://www.halo-orienteing.org.uk/doc/LUL4T.pdf>

Fat Rascal Weekend.....

The AIRE double event weekender is this Saturday and Sunday.

Prologue and final sprint competitions at Beckett Park Leeds on Saturday, and then a full Urban at Otley on Sunday.

I mentioned last week I would give an update on YHOA Urban League standings. However the last few race results have yet to be included, so I'll do it another time.

Jimmy Riddle.....

Orienteering is a thought sport, so can you solve this.....?

Twice four of us are eight of us
 And six of us are three
 Three of us are five of us
 How many can we be?
 If this is not sufficient
 And you think you'd like some more
 Seven of us are five of us
 And five of us are four.....

EVENTS.....

Thursday sees the fifth round of the LUL take place at Spalding.

SYO informal event Saturday afternoon, courses up to light green.

AIRE's Fat Rascal weekend at Leeds and Otley.

Le Tour.....

I hope you all enjoyed last weekend's national sporting events?

I was at Silverstone watching Lewis Hamilton win the British Grand Prix.

But the Tour de France in Yorkshire looked fantastic.

HALO People.....

Congratulations to Jacob Smith. He won the Year 6 Orienteering competition at the "Small Primary School" Games in Hull on Monday.

This is one of two school events HALO is involved with this week. The other being the Humber Games Final on Friday.
